Welfare reform delayed for study

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House officials told government lobbyists today that President Carter has decided the welfare problem needs more study and will defer until about August his specific recommendations to Congress on how to reform it, a source said.

The source, who was among those notified by telephone of Carter's decision, said Carter would restate his general goals: fiscal relief for localities and states which pay much of the total welfare bill, a "decent income for everybody," and simplification of the maze of paperwork now needed to administer programs to aid the poor.

"He's going to say, 'Look, we've been working on this for three months and it sure is a lot bigger problem than we thought ... We're going to have to go back over all these things again and re-think them'," the source said.

Since Congress is scheduled to be in recess during August, the deferral means any welfare package won't be considered until at least September. Congressional leaders already have said that work on energy legislation and other matters means welfare can't be taken up until next year, anyway.

The administration's lagging efforts to propose changes in the welfare system already have drawn criticism from some in Congress since Carter made welfare reform a cornerstone of his presidential campaign. He originally had set this week as a deadline to announce an overhaul package.

The President's usual Monday meeting with his Cabinet was expanded today to include congressional leaders who were invited to the State Dining Room for a special budget meeting with Thomas B. Lance, the director of the Office of Management and Budget.

Before the meeting, Lance and his deputy, James T. McIntyre Jr., were to give the President a special budget briefing.

The President and top aides worked on the welfare program over the weekend, drawing up their general principles on welfare reform. Legislation to carry out the administration's plan will be presented sometime later, although Congress may not get around to final action on it this year.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Rex Granum said the goal of the welfare reform program was to make the welfare system "more efficient and equitable." Carter often spoke during the presidential campaign about simplifying the program and making it more fair.

In addition to working on welfare proposals Sunday, the President prepared for his trip to Europe, which begins Thursday. While in Europe, Carter is to attend an economic summit and a meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in London. He also is to make a brief trip to Geneva to meet with Syrian President Hafez Assad.

As part of an effort to arrive in Europe with some advance publicity, the President was giving several European television stations an interview today at the White House.

At the center of the welfare reform issue is the question of making welfare equitable for those who can't find work and at the same time encouraging those able to work to do so.

Pressure has been placed on the administration by the states and the National Governors Conference to revise the welfare system so that full financing of welfare is met by the federal government. Under the current system, the states provide varying amounts to match federal contributions.

The administration has said the federal government cannot afford full financing, which has been estimated to cost $15 billion a year.

471-1500

TIP program underway

Bill Wellborn, executive director of the Sikeston Area Chamber of Commerce, announced today that the Turn In A Pusher program is ready to start receiving calls. The telephone number is 471-1500, and the phone will be manned around the clock, seven days a week.

The TIP Program was started by the chamber in an effort to slow down and reduce the distribution of drugs in the Sikeston area. The program is not operated by a law enforcement agency; however, it does receive the endorsement of several law enforcement officers.

The program is conducted through citizen concern and works from tips or leads supplied anonymously over the telephone. If the tips are substantial leads, they can mean a cash reward to the individual providing the tip.

Wellborn stressed that anonymity is guaranteed the caller, and no names will be asked. Several law enforcement officers, elected officials and others have given their endorsement to the program. Among those are: Walter Ivy and William Ferrell, sheriffs of New Madrid and Scott Counties respectively; Jimmie Joe Bloomfield and Fred Glover, juvenile officers for the 34th and 33rd Judicial Circuits; Kenneth Francis, Public Safety Department director, Sikeston; Eric Piel, mayor of Sikeston; Dr. Tom Pinkstaff, pediatrician; and Harold Jones, administrator of Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Anyone who desires to provide a tip anonymously may simply call 471-1500.

Red Stocking Follies draws capacity crowds

Dress rehearsals were a pain and zippers of dresses came unzipped during the performance, but the Sikeston Junior Woman's Club's annual Red Stocking Follies drew capacity crowds and numerous standing ovations Friday and Saturday nights at the Middle School gymnasium.

Although an exact figure has not been determined, Pat Taylor, chairwoman of the follies, believes that the gross amount will be much better than in years past.

Many new faces were brought into the acts this year, and director Tom Chatham seemed pleased.

According to Pat Hawkins, publicity chairman of the follies, "The concept of the follies as it stands right now is growing until it compares to the rodeo."

As in years past, the funds raised by the Junior Woman's Club follies will be given to the pediatrics ward at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Final Sikeston high school band concert to be presented tonight

The Sikeston High School symphonic band, directed by Pat Curry, will present its final concert of the school year at 8 o'clock tonight on the outdoor stage of the music building on the Sikeston High School campus.

The evening's program consists of marches, popular songs from the 1960's and 1970's and medlies taken from several Broadway musicals.

The concert will open with Jerry Bilik's march, "Block M", followed by a medley of songs from Lerner and Loewe's 1960 Broadway production of "Camelot", including the "Main Title Theme (Camelot)", "Follow Me", "I Love You Once In Silence" and "If Ever I Would Leave You".

Next on the program will be highlights from the 1964 Broadway show, "Fiddler On The Roof", by Jerry Bock. Included in the Medley are such familiar songs as "If I Were A Rich Man", "The Fiddler On The Roof", "Sabbath Prayer", "Matchmaker" and "To Life".

Lerner and Loewe's 1956 musical, "My Fair Lady", appears next on the concert in a medley of "With A Little Bit of Luck", "On The Street Where You Live", "Wouldn't It Be Loverly", "Get Me To The Church On Time", "I've Grown Accustomed To Her Face" and "I Could Have Danced All Night".

John P hilip Sousa's march "Sabre and Spurs", the official march of the American Cavalry appears next on the program. This 1918 march features regimental trumpets and drums.

The popular group, the Carpenters, is represented by a medley of three popular songs, "We've Only Just Begun", "For All We Know" and "Rainy Days and Mondays".

The concert will conclude with a symphonic portrait of one of America's most gifted and prolific composers, Richard Rodgers. In a career spanning nearly 50 years Richard Rodgers' position is unchallenged among America's theater composers.

Included in this "portrait" for symphonic band are tunes from some of Broadway's best- loved musical shows such as "South Pacific", "The King and I", "Carousel", "Cinderella", "Flower Drum Song", "Oklahoma" and "The Sound of Music". Individual songs in the medley include "Bali Hai", "There Is Nothing Like a Dame", "The Sound of Music", "I Whistle A Happy Tune", A Wonderful Guy" and "Climb Every Mountain".

In the case of inclement weather the concert will be moved inside into the Sikeston High School cafetorium.

There will be no admission charged for this concert, which is open to the public.

3 injured in area traffic accidents

Three persons were injured in separate single- vehicle accidents Sunday on area roads, the highway patrol reported today.

James T. Shaughnessy, 20, of St. Louis received moderate injuries in an accident at 10:20 a.m. Sunday on Route U, three miles north of Crump in Cape Girardeau County.

According to the patrol, a car driven south by Shaunghnessy approached a curve too fast for conditions, and he lost control of the vehicle which ran off the road and overturned several times.

He was taken to St. Francis Medical Center at Cape Girardeau.

A 6-year-old Senath boy was seriously injured in a pedestrian- truck accident at 9:15 a.m. on Route CC, one mile north of the Octa community in Dunklin County.

Michael Keith Turner was seriously injured when he ran across the highway directly into the path of a westbound pickup truck driven by Michael Don Brooks, 16, of Kennett.

The injured child was treated at Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett, then transferred to St. Francis Medical Center in Cape Girardeau.

A Fredericktown woman was seriously injured in an accident at 5:40 p.m. on Highway 67 four miles north of Silva in Wayne County.

Bessie W. Walls, 45, of Fredericktown, driver of a pickup truck traveling north, was attempting to pass another vehicle when she met a southbound car. Her truck ran off the road on the west side, struck a guard rail, then crossed back over the center line and ran down an embankment.

She was taken to Madison County Memorial Hospital in Fredericktown.

Fire damages mobile home

Fire gutted the bedroom of a mobile home Sunday and nearly made an encore in another mobile home today.

Officers from the fire division of the Public Safety Department, extinguished a fire at 6:35 p.m. Sunday in a bedroom of a mobile home at 210 Kinder Drive. The trailer is owned by June Gosnell.

The fire, caused by an electrical short circuit in an electric blankent, gutted the bedroom.

A fire truck returned to the trailer at 10:05 p.m. to extinguish a rekindled fire in the bedroom.

At 7:47 a.m. today, public safety officers prevented a fire in a bedroom of a mobile home at 308 Luther St. The mobile home is owned by Brewer Mobile Homes, and rented by George Bankhead.

Officers said an electric wire shorted out and burned in two in the ceiling of the bedroom. There was only minor damage to the bedroom ceiling.

At 8:49 a.m., officers extinguished a car fire in the Kingsway Mall parking lot. The car which received moderate damage, is owned by Vera Gilbert of Essex.

The fire was caused by the carburetor leaking gasoline onto the manifold, officers said.

Man wounded by shotgun

NEW MADRID — J. C. Marlow, 46, of 628 Russell St. suffered shotgun pellet wounds from the waist down and a shattered knee cap when he allegedly was shot at 8:10 p.m. Sunday while in the yard in front of his mobile home.

Police arrested Robert "June Bug" Taylor Jr., 31, of New Madrid, who has been charged with felonious assault. Taylor was released from custody Sunday night after posting a $500 bond, and was to be arraigned today in New Madrid County Magistrate Court.

Marlow is in Missouri Delta Community Hospital at Sikeston. Rachel Wright, 15, who was a bystander at the scene of the shooting was treated and released at the hospital for a bruised ankle, possibly caused from a ricocheted pellet.

Police said the men had become involved in a dispute and that Taylor had fired a 12-gauge single- barrel shotgun.

Overhaul of U.S. crime laws proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Possession of small amounts of marijuan would not be a federal offense and innocent victims of violent crimes could be eligible for compensation up to $50,000 under a comprehensive restructuring of federal criminal laws.

In addition, the far-reaching revision in federal law would provide for federal prosecution of Watergate-type dirty tricks and would make it less traumatic for women to testify in court against rapists.

The proposed changes in federal criminal laws are contained in legislation being offered today by Sens. John L. McClellan, D+Ark., and Edward F. Kennedy, D+Mass., with the support of Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell.

The bill would consolidate federal criminal laws into a simplified code for the first time and is designed to adapt federal laws to current conditions while eliminating inconsistency and duplication.

The measure is a compromise of earlier versions that stalled in the last two congresses. As such, it appears to stand a better chance of passage. The most controversial provisions of the previous bills, which were known as S1, have been dropped.

Among deleted sections were provisions to restore the death penalty on a limited basis and to tighten laws against the disclosure of information the government considers classified.

McClellan, a conservative who has labored on the project for 10 years, and Kennedy, a leading liberal, reached agreement on the measure after failing in efforts last year to reconcile their differences.

Although a large part of the proposed legislation is of a technical nature, many major substantive changes would be made.

Eliminated as a federal offense, but still subject to prosecution on the state or local level, would be the possession of 10 grams or less of marijuana. This amount is equivalent to a pack of cigarettes.

And under the bill the maximum penalty for possession of more than 10 grams would be 30 days and a $500 fine, compared to up to seven years in prison and a $15,000 fine under present law.

The program for compensating innocent victims of crimes of violence punishable under federal law would be financed out of criminal fines. The compensation program was previously approved by the Senate in separate legislation, but was never accepted by the House.

The measure also sets out mandatory minimum sentences for trafficking in heroin and other hard drugs and establishes minimum sentences, too, for using a weapon in the commission of a crime.

The bill also has provisions aimed at reducing wide disparities in sentences meted out by federal judges for persons convicted of similar crimes. A commission would be created to establish guidelines for sentencing for certain classes of offenses.

Crimes committed for the purpose of influencing the outcome of federal elections, such as the "dirty tricks" exposed during Watergate investigations, would be subject to federal prosecution.

In rape cases, the requirement for corroboration of a victim's testimony would be eliminated and inquiry into the victim's past sexual conduct would be sharply curtailed. Also, the offense is redefined to cover homosexual rape.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Everyone is tempted occasionally to violate rules.

XXX

A CALL TO ALL AMERICANS

By MARVIN STONE

President Carter's costly and ambitious energy program faces some formidable obstacles. Obstacle No. 1 is people.

Millions of people have so little confidence in Washington that they despair whether the White House and Congress really know what they are doing or, if they do, whether they are capable of executing a massice program in an intelligent way.

Secondly, millions of Americans distrust the big oil companies, the electric- utility companies and the auto companies with such fervor that they are convinced this program means only that the rich companies will get richer at their expense.

Those are open scars, antagonisms that lie very close to the surface of national life. But there is more: People are complaining openly and bitterly about environmentalists' being as serious a threat to the energy program as what they insist is Washington's stupidity and industry's cupidity.

A great many folks in this country are fed up with the tactics of environmentalists who selectively choose their targets (and their pet judges) to force costly delays or outright cancellations of vital energy projects.

The Carter program calls not only for volunteer effort, but for sacrifice by ordinary citizens. But many of these citizens are asking: "Why should I put myself out any further? If this is a crisis, why aren't we demanding that the environmentalists call off their costly warfare, and compromise instead?"

Our hearts go out, because all of us are environmentalists at heart; who does not want to breath clean air, drink pure water, gaze out over unsullied landscapes?

But we should not get misty-eyed dwelling on it, for our heads tell us another story: Without clear air, we may cough; without energy, we go back to an economic Stone Age.

Thus: Attempts to extract our estimated 64 to 130 billion barrels of offshore oil — a 10-year supply — must not be tied up forever in court, despite the understandable distaste of shorteline dwellers.

Thus: Nuclear power plants that are judged essential — and the President says he intends to hold them to a reasonable minimum — must be allowed to go forward after safety requirements have been fulfilled. We should call a halt to the endless pitched battles that use up 11 years before an atomic utility can be brought into operation.

Thus: Hydroelectric dams must be built even if they endanger a tiny fish called the snail darter or a flower known as the furbish lousewort. Human survival comes first.

Greatest hopes of all are placed in our 90-year to 400-year reserve of coal. But coal, too, has its problems. Environmental blocks are the chief force in holding coal production in 1976 to a miserly 2.6 per cent gain over 1975. Eastern coal is mostly sulphurous and burns which acrid fumes, costly to remove. Regulations have been hard to meet or enforce. Easier methods of purifying are under test. For the near future, however, if plants converting to coal do not achieve clean-air standards, we may have to suffer discomfort.

Western coal is relatively clean. If the railways can upgrade their roadbeds, substantial amounts can be shipped east. Dwellers in towns along the way would have to suffer the incessant rumble of hopper-car wheels. But that is far from being the biggest barrier. The West's immense seams of coal are close under the grass, and the ground after strip mining lies like an open sore until leveled and replanted. The least the inhabitants can demand is restoration of the land, where feasible. But the coal has got to come out.

To put this country on the road to self- sufficiency will be a struggle. In the end the fight is for survival of our society. All Americans should understand that.

IS THIS PRISONER NECESSARY?

The British Foreign Office is going to ask the Soviet government, for about the umpteenth time, to agree to the release of Rudolph Hess.

The one-time deputy fuehrer to Adolf Hitler has been in prison since May, 1941, when he flew to Scotland on a bizarre mission to persuade Winston Churchill to negotiate for peace with the Nazis. Since the end of World War II, he has been confined in Spandau prison in Berlin where, at 83, he is the only prisoner left.

Under the postwar four-power agreement governing the administration of Berlin, Hess is elaborately guarded by American, British, French and Russian troops in rotation at an annual cost of around $300,000.

For years, the three western governments have been trying to get the Soviets to allow Hess to be committed to a sanitarium at least. His mental health, questionable 36 years ago, has seriously deteriorated, as has his physical health. He recently attempted suicide.

But the Russians have insisted that Hess must remain in Spandau to serve out the life sentence he received at the 1946 Nuremburg war-crime trials.

If this latest request by the British is turned down, it might be time for the allies to wash their hands of the whole thing. If Rudolph Hess is that important to the Russians, let them take over full responsibility for guarding him, and let them bear the full costs.

ELECTIONDAY REGISTRATION

One of the several electoral law reform proposals which the Carter administration has made to Congress calls for the election day registration of voters in federal elections. Any citizen who wished to vote for president, vice president, U.S. senator and representative need only go to the polling place on election day, register and cast his ballot, subject only to appropriate requirements of identification.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has greeted the proposal as a "brilliant and imaginative" solution to the confusion and irrationality of the present voter registration laws in most states.

Others are not so sure. Widespread fraud would be inevitable, they claim, especially if polling place officials were overwhelmed with waiting lines of people.

Some are afraid that the Republican party, which commands the allegiance of a steadily shrinking minority of voters, would be the loser. They point to the results of the last presidential election in Minnesota and Wisconsin, where election day registration was permitted. GOP congressional leaders, however, have voiced support of the proposal, apparently reasoning that the Republicans would stand to lose even more favor if they appeared to oppose something designed to encourage more Americans to vote.

Certain it is that election day registration would bring out voters in presidential election years in greater numbers than they have ever been brought out before. Millions of people are disfranchised every four years — simply because they have moved from one state to another and have not established residency in time to be eligible to vote.

There must be many more millions who don't bother to register or always forget to register until too late., or who tune out of the weary presidential campaigns long before they are over, but who might be moved to stir their stumps when election day actually came around.

Which brings up yet another objection — that election day registration might result in a lot of purely impulse voting by a lot of thoughtless people.

If a person does not care enough about his government to take the trouble to register. in advance and then to listen to the candidates and study the issues, it is asked, does the government have the responsibility of taking him by the hand and leading him to the voting booth?

But then, voter registration and voter discernment are not necessarily synonymous. Many people faithfully maintain their registration and faithfully vote in every election — for the straight party ticket, no matter who the candidates are.

Ideally, the right to choose the leaders of their country ought to be considered so precious by Americans that they would overcome all obstacles to exercise that right. But if the obstacles aren't really necessary, why have them?

MAKING EDUCATION USEFUL IN AFRICA

From Africa, London

As African countries see it youth unemployment is their main social problem today. in large part it is the result of the educational system. This is one of the drearier legacies of colonial regimes which needed clerks to man the lower levels of the bureaucracies. That was precisely what the system, with its narrowly academic orientation, produce.

Today Africa does not need more clerks; it needs skilled and semiskilled workers and, above all, productive farmers. Yet schools are still based by and large on the nineteenth-century European models while unemployed youths wait in long queues in front of employment exchanges. Attempts to reform the system radically are resested by parents who fear their children will be given a "second-class education." Nevertheless a number of countries have embarked on reform with varying degrees of enthusiasm and caution.

In Tanzania, for example, the existing system of primary education is being restructured from the ground up. Village schools are being progressively transformed into Shule Ya Kijamaa, a term that can be translated as "community schools." At the pilot school in Kwamsisi, about 100 miles north of Dar es Salaam, village leaders have helped to draw up the curriculum. The "three Rs" are not shunned, but the children participate fully in the life of the village, not only after school but during school hours as well. Village craftsmen and farmers teach practical skills. Vacations coincide with planting and harvests.

Many children do not start primary school until the age of eight or nine and will have no more than seven years of schooling. The aim of the Kwamsisi experiment is to ensure that the education will be useful to them. The new system is being introduced into 10 pilot schools throughout the country this year, and will be extended to all of Tanzania's rural schools as soon as enough teachers can be retrained.

A LOOK AT INCOME MAINTENANCE

With the best of intentions to insure that the working men and women of this country have an adequate source of income after age 65, Congress has enacted a series of laws in the past two decades which, in total, have created a hodgepodge of costly inequities.

One of the most glaring examples of overlap in benefit payments is seen when a working couple—one of whom is employed in the private sector and the other is a career federal employee—reaches retirement. Such a couple is entitled to three benefits—a Civil Service retirement pension for one, a primary Social Security benefit for the other, and a secondary Social Security benefit as well.

If both husband and wife were employed in the private sector, each would be entitiled only to a primary Social Security benefit.

It is estimated that coordination of Social Security and Civil Service retirement benefits would result in a savings of over $850 million a year.

A recent study by a Task Force of the National Association of Manufacturers comments: "Even a cursory look at the income maintenance system suggests a much longer look is necessary." We heartily agree.

Politics' Pay Lode:

Office Union Wins Unique Contract -- Employer to Check Off Political Dues for Labor

NEW YORK — There will be more dollars and more starch in labor's political action now that the nation's leading white- collar union has set a brand- new style for collecting campaign funds for its favorite candidates for public office.

This 100,000 -member AFL-CIO Office and Professional Employes International Union (OPEIU) -- made up of bank clerks and nuclear bomb experimenting corporation staffers; of hypnotist locals and insurance salesmen; of Groton, Conn., Electric Boat Company atomic submarine technicians; some sheriffs and Blue Cross and Wall Street stock exchange workers -- has set a precedent for the giants of labor.

Led by its president, Howard Goughlin, the OPEIU has just signed the first contract I know of which calls for a unionized corporation to check off political as well as membership dues for labor's political action.

This will be done monthly. The employer, the American Income Life Insurance Company of Waco, Tex., a $60 million firm, now deducts the approved amount from the middle management employe's salary as well as from the rank- and-file worker's pay. Then the money goes to the Local (277) which in turn sends much of it along to Coughlin's national office here in the Big Aple which operates the OPEIU Voice of the Electorate (VOTE) Committee.

Then some 90 per cent of these funds are moved down to the AFL-CIO whirlwindish national director, Al Barken, head of the Committee on Political Education (COPE) in Washington.

It's the breakthrough which the stentorian Al Barkan has been seeking for years. He discussed such strategy at a closed-door jammed COPE session during the recent Bal Harbour, Fla., COPE administrative committee conferences.

If this precedent is implemented in the mass industries, there will be a steady, year-round, monthly flow of millions of dollars -- all neatly bundled by the corporations as per the union contract. Much like deductions for flower funds, vacations and clambakes.

The political dues check-off clauses are as simple as they are unique and pregnant. They were worked up by Coughlin, some of his local officials and Bernard Rapoport, the insurance company's gun-ho chairman and chief executive officer. The contract authorizes the American Income Life Insurance Company to deduct a fixed amount monthly from the salaries of his thousand insurance agents and their aides in virtually every state as well as from the 300 home- office employes in Waco.

Coughlin and Rapoport and the labor movement have amiable labor relations. Annually, the company contributes some $750,000 to "labor causes," I'm told. When Barkan telephones Rapoport for financial aid for some "needy" candidate during a primary or final election race, the company chief "usually sends the money." Actually, the word is that Rapoport never has failed Barkan, COPE or the AFL-CIO.

Apparently neither have they failed him.

The Texan, whose people landed at Glaveston decades ago, has built his insurance company to its $60 million volume from some $25,000 borrowed by a relative in Indiana. Rapoport's style is as innovative as is his new labor contract. He sells directly to the union members. First he convinces the union leaders to permit him to use their membership mailing list.

Then he offers the rank and file individual insurance policies through these mailings without ever seeing the list, but after the queries come in. This sales method, offering coverage atop the regular union coverage and his intimacy with hundreds of labor executives, many one a first- name basis, is also unique.

Rapoport signed early with Coughlin's OPEIU, which also represents staffers inside many union headquarters. And in recent negotiations, coming after the February COPE conference in Floorida, I'm told, the insurance company was convinced to set precedent.

This corporate political dues check-off of unionized employes for labor's political action is denied to corporations which would like to convince their employes to check off dues for non-labor pro-business candidates for public office.

Under the rewritten law which revamped the six-person Federal Election Commission, companies can't even solicit their employes more than twice a year for contributions to the industry PAC (Political Action Committees). And then generally, through a third party, such as a trade association.

There are hundreds of these industry PACs in the suckling stage now: the National Restaurant Association's Restauratuers PAC, and the National Lumber and Building Material Dealers Association's political arm LudPAC; and BreadPAC of the American Bakers Association for example.

It's significant that these business PAACs are-suing the Federal Election Commission in an effort to reverse some of its decisions which the associations say deny them their rights under the First Amendment guaranteeing freedom of speech and association and under the Fifth Amendment rights of due process.

This action, filed in Federal District Court in Chicago some time ago, is being handled by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce's National Chamber Litigation Center, Inc. The center was launched some months back to battle the free- swinging COPE and the innovative actions of labor's political strategists such as Coughlin and his local union officers.

The political dues check-off of union members by employers could start a political gold rush.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

No More U-2s Over Cuba

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- President Carter, in an effort to show Fidel Castro that the United States is serious about resuming full relations, has secretly called off reconnaissance flights over Cuba.

From the earliest days of the Castro regime until September 1974, the United States regularly snapped aerial photographs from U-2 planes flying high over Cuba. From then until this January 11th, the sophisticated SR-71 reconnaissance plane was used to gather photographic intelligence about activities on the island.

That was the final flight. Shortly after assuming office, President Carter ordered an end to the SR-71 Cuban forays.

This, of course, is but one of the signs that the official U.S. attitude toward Cuba has begun to soften. Assistant Secretary of State Terence Todman has been in Havana as head of an American delegation that is negotiating with Cuba over fishing rights in the straits between Cuba and Florida. And the State Department officially blessed a series of basketball games between Cuban and U.S. teams.

However, federal investigators have received disturbing new allegations about Cuba that could quickly chill the recent thaw in the diplomatic climate.

The allegations come from an informant inside Panama, where top government officials have been trafficking in international narcotics for years. The shadowy underworld informant charges that Latin American narcotics flowing into the United States are actually transshipped through Cuba.

Congressional investigators, we previously reported, have established that the brother of Panamanian dictator Omar Torrijos, Moises, has been funneling heroin into the United States. But the State Department, fearful of upsetting the delicate negotiations over the Panama Canal, has looked the other way.

The informant also maintains that an automobile dealership in Panama has been used as a front to sell narcotics to American soldiers in the Canal Zone.

Federal investigators are trying to determine if the informant is entirely credible. They say he appeared cool and professional and that 90 per cent of his information appears accurate.

Footnote: The State Department vehemently denies it has ignored any evidence of drug smuggling. Federal narcotic officials told us they have found absolutely no evidence of drugs being smuggled into the United States through Cuba. Attempts are being made to have the Panamanian informant, who must remain anonymous for his own safety, repeat his allegations in secret testimony on Capitol Hill.

Navy Neighbors: The Navy has asked Vice President Walter Mondale to rein in his daughter and her horse. The vice presidential manor is located on six acres of Washington's Naval Observatory Grounds, adjacent to another 24 acres used by the Navy.

The vice president's 17-year-old daughter, Eleanor Jane, was so anxious to ride her horse "Junior" to a nearby birdle path that she trespassed on Navy territory.

An employee spotted her near the Navy's administration building and turned in a report. After being briefed on the Navy regulations, Mondale promised "it won't happen again."

Navy officials insist they are quite happy with their vice presidential neighbor. They made no comment about the horse.

Strip Mining Snag: Proposed strip-mining legislation has been jeopardized by the alteration of a crucial report on coal production.

One of the major battles has centered around how to mine coal without permanently destroying alluvial valley floors. While these giant, loose sediment deposits are agriculturally productive, strip mining around them would leave untold tons of coal in the ground. This could hinder President Carter's plan for increased reliance on coal.

Federal environmental officials called in an outside consultant, ICF, Inc., to determine how much coal would be lost if the valley floors are preserved. ICF's first analysis, say our sources, confirmed many experts' fears of massive production cutbacks.

Just seven days later, however, a second ICF report appeared, contending that only half as much coal would be lost. Other vital conclusions of the previous study had been watered down.

There was some grumbling that the changes had been penciled in by overzealous environmentalists, who were fearful that a negative report would damage the prospects for passage of strip-mining legislation.

Government officials deny that the report was doctored. ICF chairman C. Hoff Stauffer told us that no one ordered his firm to alter the report.

Mining Racism: The specter of racism has surfaced in an election campaign in the United Mine Workers.

In a letter sent to every union local, James Blair, a candidate for vice president of pensions, points out that he is "a white man." One of Blair's opponents, Brooker Thomas, is black.

"I didn't think there's any harm in it," Blair told us, "because if you read at the bottom of my letter, it says, 'The door will be open to everyone.' I'm a lover of the black people."

A CALL TO ALL AMERICANS

By MARVIN STONE

President Carter's costly and ambitious energy program faces some formidable obstacles. Obstacle No. 1 is people.

Millions of people have so little confidence in Washington that they despair whether the White House and Congress really know what they are doing or, if they do, whether they are capable of executing a massice program in an intelligent way.

Secondly, millions of Americans distrust the big oil companies, the electric- utility companies and the auto companies with such fervor that they are convinced this program means only that the rich companies will get richer at their expense.

Those are open scars, antagonisms that lie very close to the surface of national life. But there is more: People are complaining openly and bitterly about environmentalists' being as serious a threat to the energy program as what they insist is Washington's stupidity and industry's cupidity.

A great many folks in this country are fed up with the tactics of environmentalists who selectively choose their targets (and their pet judges) to force costly delays or outright cancellations of vital energy projects.

The Carter program calls not only for volunteer effort, but for sacrifice by ordinary citizens. But many of these citizens are asking: "Why should I put myself out any further? If this is a crisis, why aren't we demanding that the environmentalists call off their costly warfare, and compromise instead?"

Our hearts go out, because all of us are environmentalists at heart; who does not want to breath clean air, drink pure water, gaze out over unsullied landscapes?

If a person does not care enough about his government to take the trouble to register in advance and then to listen to the candidates and study the issues, it is asked, does the government have the responsibility of taking him by the hand and leading him to the voting booth?

But then, voter registration and voter discernment are not necessarily synonymous. Many people faithfully maintain their registration and faithfully vote in every election — for the straight party ticket, no matter who the candidates are.

Ideally, the right to choose the leaders of their country ought to be considered so precious by Americans that they would overcome all obstacles to exercise that right. But if the obstacles aren't really necessary, why have them?

The girl had a date with a circus sword-swallower. Not having seen one perform before, she asked him to demonstrate his art, whereupon he swallowed some pins and needles.

"Those aren't swords," scoffed the girl. "They're just pins and needles.'"

"I know," came the sword-swallower's reply. "I'm on a diet."

Team nicknames delight a New Jersey man, who has devised his own game with them. Ignoring differences of leagues and sports, he asks such questions as:

If the Bills played the Bucks, would they cash in at the gate?

If the Blues played the Jazz, would it be a game of note?

If the Flyers played the Jets, would the game be aired nationally?

If the Suns played the Flames, would the teams burn themselves out?

If the Padres played the Saints, would it be a matchup made in Heaven?

If the Angels played the Spirits, would either team have a ghost of a chance?

If the Cubs played the Bruins, could the public bear it?

Can you?

A man who needed a set of false teeth was looking for a bargain. He went from one dentist to another comparing prices, until he found one who would make them for $60. Then he asked the dentist to give him a reference among his patients. 'Why, yes," said Dr. Yankem. "Look up Joe Zilch on West Street."

Our man looked up Joe Zilch and said, "I understand the doctor made a set of teeth for you six months ago for $60. Do you feel that they were satisfactory?"

"Well, I'll tell you," said Zilch. "My hobby is skin diving. Last week, I was 40 feet down in the water off one of the Florida Keys when I saw a shark coming at me. I tried to swim away, but there was a tangle of barbed wire on the ocean floor, and an octopus had made a nest in it. As I went by, with the shark snapping at my back, the octopus reached out and started dragging me through that barbed wire. And that, mister, was the first time in six months my mind hadn't been on those $60 teeth."

MAKING EDUCATION USEFUL IN AFRICA

From Africa, London

As African countries see it youth unemployment is their main social problem today. in large part it is the result of the educational system. This is one of the drearier legacies of colonial regimes which needed clerks to man the lower levels of the bureaucracies. That was precisely what the system, with its narrowly academic orientation, produce.

Today Africa does not need more clerks; it needs skilled and semiskilled workers and, above all, productive farmers. Yet schools are still based by and large on the nineteenth-century European models while unemployed youths wait in long queues in front of employment exchanges. Attempts to reform the system radically are resested by parents who fear their children will be given a "second-class education." Nevertheless a number of countries have embarked on reform with varying degrees of enthusiasm and caution.

In Tanzania, for example, the existing system of primary education is being restructured from the ground up. Village schools are being progressively transformed into Shule Ya Kijamaa, a term that can be translated as "community schools." At the pilot school in Kwamsisi, about 100 miles north of Dar es Salaam, village leaders have helped to draw up the curriculum. The "three Rs" are not shunned, but the children participate fully in the life of the village, not only after school but during school hours as well. Village craftsmen and farmers teach practical skills. Vacations coincide with planting and harvests.

Many children do not start primary school until the age of eight or nine and will have no more than seven years of schooling. The aim of the Kwamsisi experiment is to ensure that the education will be useful to them. The new system is being introduced into 10 pilot schools throughout the country this year, and will be extended to all of Tanzania's rural schools as soon as enough teachers can be retrained.

A LOOK AT INCOME MAINTENANCE

With the best of intentions to insure that the working men and women of this country have an adequate source of income after age 65, Congress has enacted a series of laws in the past two decades which, in total, have created a hodgepodge of costly inequities.

One of the most glaring examples of overlap in benefit payments is seen when a working couple—one of whom is employed in the private sector and the other is a career federal employee—reaches retirement. Such a couple is entitled to three benefits—a Civil Service retirement pension for one, a primary Social Security benefit for the other, and a secondary Social Security benefit as well.

If both husband and wife were employed in the private sector, each would be entitiled only to a primary Social Security benefit.

It is estimated that coordination of Social Security and Civil Service retirement benefits would result in a savings of over $850 million a year.

A recent study by a Task Force of the National Association of Manufacturers comments: "Even a cursory look at the income maintenance system suggests a much longer look is necessary." We heartily agree.

By Victor Riesel

Politics' Pay Lode:

Office Union Wins Unique Contract -- Employer to Check Off Political Dues for Labor

NEW YORK — There will be more dollars and more starch in labor's political action now that the nation's leading white- collar union has set a brand- new style for collecting campaign funds for its favorite candidates for public office.

This 100,000 -member AFL-CIO Office and Professional Employes International Union (OPEIU) -- made up of bank clerks and nuclear bomb experimenting corporation staffers; of hypnotist locals and insurance salesmen; of Groton, Conn., Electric Boat Company atomic submarine technicians; some sheriffs and Blue Cross and Wall Street stock exchange workers -- has set a precedent for the giants of labor.

Led by its president, Howard Goughlin, the OPEIU has just signed the first contract I know of which calls for a unionized corporation to check off political as well as membership dues for labor's political action.

This will be done monthly. The employer, the American Income Life Insurance Company of Waco, Tex., a $60 million firm, now deducts the approved amount from the middle management employe's salary as well as from the rank- and-file worker's pay. Then the money goes to the Local (277) which in turn sends much of it along to Coughlin's national office here in the Big Aple which operates the OPEIU Voice of the Electorate (VOTE) Committee.

Then some 90 per cent of these funds are moved down to the AFL-CIO whirlwindish national director, Al Barken, head of the Committee on Political Education (COPE) in Washington.

It's the breakthrough which the stentorian Al Barkan has been seeking for years. He discussed such strategy at a closed-door jammed COPE session during the recent Bal Harbour, Fla., COPE administrative committee conferences.

If this precedent is implemented in the mass industries, there will be a steady, year-round, monthly flow of millions of dollars -- all neatly bundled by the corporations as per the union contract. Much like deductions for flower funds, vacations and clambakes.

The political dues check-off clauses are as simple as they are unique and pregnant. They were worked up by Coughlin, some of his local officials and Bernard Rapoport, the insurance company's gun-ho chairman and chief executive officer. The contract authorizes the American Income Life Insurance Company to deduct a fixed amount monthly from the salaries of his thousand insurance agents and their aides in virtually every state as well as from the 300 home- office employes in Waco.

Coughlin and Rapoport and the labor movement have amiable labor relations. Annually, the company contributes some $750,000 to "labor causes," I'm told. When Barkan telephones Rapoport for financial aid for some "needy" candidate during a primary or final election race, the company chief "usually sends the money." Actually, the word is that Rapoport never has failed Barkan, COPE or the AFL-CIO.

Apparently neither have they failed him.

The Texan, whose people landed at Glaveston decades ago, has built his insurance company to its $60 million volume from some $25,000 borrowed by a relative in Indiana. Rapoport's style is as innovative as is his new labor contract. He sells directly to the union members. First he convinces the union leaders to permit him to use their membership mailing list.

Then he offers the rank and file individual insurance policies through these mailings without ever seeing the list, but after the queries come in. This sales method, offering coverage atop the regular union coverage and his intimacy with hundreds of labor executives, many one a first- name basis, is also unique.

Rapoport signed early with Coughlin's OPEIU, which also represents staffers inside many union headquarters. And in recent negotiations, coming after the February COPE conference in Floorida, I'm told, the insurance company was convinced to set precedent.

This corporate political dues check-off of unionized employes for labor's political action is denied to corporations which would like to convince their employes to check off dues for non-labor pro-business candidates for public office.

Under the rewritten law which revamped the six-person Federal Election Commission, companies can't even solicit their employes more than twice a year for contributions to the industry PAC (Political Action Committees). And then generally, through a third party, such as a trade association.

There are hundreds of these industry PACs in the suckling stage now: the National Restaurant Association's Restauratuers PAC, and the National Lumber and Building Material Dealers Association's political arm LudPAC; and BreadPAC of the American Bakers Association for example.

It's significant that these business PAACs are suing the Federal Election Commission in an effort to reverse some of its decisions which the associations say deny them their rights under the First Amendment guaranteeing freedom of speech and association and under the Fifth Amendment rights of due process.

This action, filed in Federal District Court in Chicago some time ago, is being handled by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce's National Chamber Litigation Center, Inc. The center was launched some months back to battle the free- swinging COPE and the innovative actions of labor's political strategists such as Coughlin and his local union officers.

The political dues check-off of union members by employers could start a political gold rush.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

No More U-2s Over Cuba

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- President Carter, in an effort to show Fidel Castro that the United States is serious about resuming full relations, has secretly called off reconnaissance flights over Cuba.

From the earliest days of the Castro regime until September 1974, the United States regularly snapped aerial photographs from U-2 planes flying high over Cuba. From then until this January 11th, the sophisticated SR-71 reconnaissance plane was used to gather photographic intelligence about activities on the island.

That was the final flight. Shortly after assuming office, President Carter ordered an end to the SR-71 Cuban forays.

This, of course, is but one of the signs that the official U.S. attitude toward Cuba has begun to soften. Assistant Secretary of State Terence Todman has been in Havana as head of an American delegation that is negotiating with Cuba over fishing rights in the straits between Cuba and Florida. And the State Department officially blessed a series of basketball games between Cuban and U.S. teams.

However, federal investigators have received disturbing new allegations about Cuba that could quickly chill the recent thaw in the diplomatic climate.

The allegations come from an informant inside Panama, where top government officials have been trafficking in international narcotics for years. The shadowy underworld informant charges that Latin American narcotics flowing into the United States are actually transshipped through Cuba.

Congressional investigators, we previously reported, have established that the brother of Panamanian dictator Omar Torrijos, Moises, has been funneling heroin into the United States. But the State Department, fearful of upsetting the delicate negotiations over the Panama Canal, has looked the other way.

The informant also maintains that an automobile dealership in Panama has been used as a front to sell narcotics to American soldiers in the Canal Zone.

Federal investigators are trying to determine if the informant is entirely credible. They say he appeared cool and professional and that 90 per cent of his information appears accurate.

Footnote: The State Department vehemently denies it has ignored any evidence of drug smuggling. Federal narcotic officials told us they have found absolutely no evidence of drugs being smuggled into the United States through Cuba. Attempts are being made to have the Panamanian informant, who must remain anonymous for his own safety, repeat his allegations in secret testimony on Capitol Hill.

Navy Neighbors: The Navy has asked Vice President Walter Mondale to rein in his daughter and her horse. The vice presidential manor is located on six acres of Washington's Naval Observatory Grounds, adjacent to another 24 acres used by the Navy.

The vice president's 17-year-old daughter, Eleanor Jane, was so anxious to ride her horse "Junior" to a nearby birdle path that she trespassed on Navy territory.

An employee spotted her near the Navy's administration building and turned in a report. After being briefed on the Navy regulations, Mondale promised "it won't happen again."

Navy officials insist they are quite happy with their vice presidential neighbor. They made no comment about the horse.

Strip Mining Snag: Proposed strip-mining legislation has been jeopardized by the alteration of a crucial report on coal production.

One of the major battles has centered around how to mine coal without permanently destroying alluvial valley floors. While these giant, loose sediment deposits are agriculturally productive, strip mining around them would leave untold tons of coal in the ground. This could hinder President Carter's plan for increased reliance on coal.

Federal environmental officials called in an outside consultant, ICF, Inc., to determine how much coal would be lost if the valley floors are preserved. ICF's first analysis, say our sources, confirmed many experts' fears of massive production cutbacks.

Just seven days later, however, a second ICF report appeared, contending that only half as much coal would be lost. Other vital conclusions of the previous study had been watered down.

There was some grumbling that the changes had been penciled in by overzealous environmentalists, who were fearful that a negative report would damage the prospects for passage of strip-mining legislation.

Government officials deny that the report was doctored. ICF chairman C. Hoff Stauffer told us that no one ordered his firm to alter the report.

Mining Racism: The specter of racism has surfaced in an election campaign in the United Mine Workers.

In a letter sent to every union local, James Blair, a candidate for vice president of pensions, points out that he is "a white man." One of Blair's opponents, Brooker Thomas, is black.

"I didn't think there's any harm in it," Blair told us, "because if you read at the bottom of my letter, it says, 'The door will be open to everyone.' I'm a lover of the black people."

Bhutto peace offer rejected

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's political opponents have rejected his peace offer and say their civil disobedience campaign will continue until he resigns. Sources in the opposition Pakistan National Alliance said Bhutto agreed to hold new national and provincial elections, appoint a new election commissioner and form an interim government divided equally between his Pakistan People's Party and the PNA. But the 49-year-old prime minister refused to resign, saying his position was "non-negotiable."

More British troops summoned

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The British government was flying 600 more combat troops to Northern Ireland today in preparation for a general strike called by militant Protestants for midnight tonight. The new reinforcements raised the number of troops in Northern Ireland to 15,500, the largest number in more than three years. Officials said at least 3,000 more were on standby in England, and the government also had 17,650 militiamen, police and police reservists in the war-torn province.

Hearing on Laetrile opens

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Is Laetrile really the anti-cancer substance its proponents claim?

Or is it biologically inert, useless in preventing any type of disease?

Is it even a drug? And if so, should it be legalized for sale in the United States?

These were the questions facing the Food and Drug Administration today as it opened a court-ordered public hearing on the legal and scientific status of Laetrile.

Twenty persons have announced their intention to present oral arguments at the hearing, which will last at least through Tuesday.

The FDA claims it has found no evidence to substantiate claims that Laetrile can cure or prevent cancer. It is holding the hearing as the result of an October 1976 ruling in which the U.S. 10th Court of Appeals called for an "administrative rulemaking record" on the substance.

Laetrile is found in the pits of apricots, peaches and bitter almonds. Proponents claim it is not a drug but a vitamin, B-17, and should not be constricted by federal drug laws.

The substance cannot be sold legally in the United States but is permitted in 26 other countries and is smuggled in from Mexico and Canada. However, Alaska has recently legalized its use and the state legislature in Indiana overrode a veto by Gov. Otis Bowen, a doctor, on a bill permitting use of the substance.

Fire insurance changes blocked

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — An attempt to modify fire protection district ratings has been blocked by Missouri Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale who claimed that the proposed changes would hike rates for some fire insurance policyholders.

Teasdale said he has asked the Insurance Services Office to withdraw a proposed consolidation of its 10-point rating system and warned that he will seek a court injunction if the private advisory firm refuses to act voluntarily.

The ISO has proposed that cities in its classes of one through eight be averaged together into a new class with identical rates. Currently, cities with higher ratings based on fire department quality, water supply and other factors have lower insurance rates than cities with lower ratings.

Fire officials in St. Louis County have complained about the ISO's proposed changes, noting that large amounts of money have been spent to improve their districts' ratings.

Pierce resigns PSC post

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri Public Service Commissioner A. Robert Pierce, the former commission chairman who vocally disputed contentions of Gov. Joseph Teasdale earlier this year, said he will resign from the commission next month.

In a two-paragraph letter to the governor, Pierce said "personal considerations suggest that I step down at this time." His resignation is effective June 13.

He had served on the commission for 3½ years and had refused along with three other commissioners in January to resign at Teasdale's request.

Teasdale had said in his campaign he would either fire or seek the resignations of all the commission members except James Mulvaney because he claimed those four men had not been acting in the public interest.

At the time Pierce and the others declined to resign, they indicated that decision was not intended to mean they planned to complete their full terms. They said then it depended on what the atmosphere would surround the commission's activities in the future.

Nuclear plant sit-in jails 800

SEABROOK, N.H. (AP) — At least 800 demonstrators, most of them in their 20s, were being held in jails and armories in this seacoast area today after they were arrested for refusing to end a peaceful sit-in at a nuclear power plant. Most of those who were taken into custody in arrests that began Sunday and stretched into early today at the site of the $2 billion Seabrook nuclear plant were booked for investigation of criminal trespass.

Sheriff's office busy over weekend

BLOOMFIELD — A raid, a break- in and a theft of garden equipment kept the Stoddard County Sheriff's Department busy over the weekend.

The Twin Lakes Fishing Club on Route AB north of Bloomfield was raided at 9:30 p.m. Saturday by representatives of the State Liquor Control Board, Missouri Highway Patrol and Stoddard County Sheriff's Department.

The club was operated by Donald Perry of Route Three, who reportedly had no liquor license.

Officers seized a quantity of beer and liquor as contraband and arrested Ricky S. Perry, 23, who was charged with selling alcoholic beverages without a license, after selling beer to a state liquor control agent.

Perry is free on bond.

No other arrests were made in the raid and the club was closed down.

Two rooms of furniture were stolen Friday from the Raymond Battles' home at Dudley.

The break-in was discovered Friday morning.

Entry was gained by breaking open a window and unlocking a door.

Two garden tillers and a lawn mower were stolen from the yard of Orville McCormick of Dexter Route Three on Saturday, the sheriff's department said.

Local traffic accident leaves 2 hurt

Two persons received minor injuries in a two- car accident at the intersection of North Main Street and Kennedy Drive Saturday morning, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Treated and released in the emergency room at Missouri Delta Community Hospital were Debra Watson, 20, of 811 Harvard Drive, who was treated for bruises to the forehead, and a passenger in the car she was driving, Robert Murrell, 12, of 615 W. North St., who was treated for a blow to the head.

Public safety officers said the accident occurred at 11:43 a.m. when the Watson car, northbound on North Main Street struck the side of a car driven by Linda Mae Miller, 39, of 323 Matthews Ave., as it made a left turn onto Main Street from Kennedy Drive.

There were no arrests, according to officers.

FIRES

CHARLESTON — Fireman were called at 6:18 a.m. today to extinguish a fire at French Implement Co., 501 E. Marshal St.

The fire reportedly started from an electric coffee maker in the showroom area and damage was confined to that area. A large plate glass window was destroyed, and smoke and soot damage was also reported.

Today's news in brief

Bhutto peace offer rejected

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's political opponents have rejected his peace offer and say their civil disobedience campaign will continue until he resigns. Sources in the opposition Pakistan National Alliance said Bhutto agreed to hold new national and provincial elections, appoint a new election commissioner and form an interim government divided equally between his Pakistan People's Party and the PNA. But the 49-year-old prime minister refused to resign, saying his position was "non-negotiable."

More British troops summoned

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The British government was flying 600 more combat troops to Northern Ireland today in preparation for a general strike called by militant Protestants for midnight tonight. The new reinforcements raised the number of troops in Northern Ireland to 15,500, the largest number in more than three years. Officials said at least 3,000 more were on standby in England, and the government also had 17,850 militiamen, police and police reservists in the war-torn province.

Hearing on Laetrile opens

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Is Laetrile really the anti-cancer substance its proponents claim?

Or is it biologically inert, useless in preventing any type of disease?

Is it even a drug? And if so, should it be legalized for sale in the United States?

These were the questions facing the Food and Drug Administration today as it opened a court-ordered public hearing on the legal and scientific status of Laetrile.

Twenty persons have announced their intention to present oral arguments at the hearing, which will last at least through Tuesday.

The FDA claims it has found no evidence to substantiate claims that Laetrile can cure or prevent cancer. It is holding the hearing as the result of an October 1976 ruling in which the U.S. 10th Court of Appeals called for an "administrative rulemaking record" on the substance.

Laetrile is found in the pits of apricots, peaches and bitter almonds. Proponents claim it is not a drug but a vitamin, B-17, and should not be constricted by federal drug laws.

The substance cannot be sold legally in the United States but is permitted in 26 other countries and is smuggled in from Mexico and Canada. However, Alaska has recently legalized its use and the state legislature in Indiana overrode a veto by Gov. Otis Bowen, a doctor, on a bill permitting use of the substance.

Fire insurance changes blocked

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — An attempt to modify fire protection district ratings has been blocked by Missouri Gov. Josèph P. Teasdale who claimed that the proposed changes would hike rates for some fire insurance policyholders.

Teasdale said he has asked the Insurance Services Office to withdraw a proposed consolidation of its 10-point rating system and warned that he will seek a court injunction if the private advisory firm refuses to act voluntarily.

The ISO has proposed that cities in its classes of one through eight be averaged together into a new class with identical rates. Currently, cities with higher ratings based on fire department quality, water supply and other factors have lower insurance rates than cities with lower ratings.

Fire officials in St. Louis County have complained about the ISO's proposed changes, noting that large amounts of money have been spent to improve their districts' ratings.

Pierce resigns PSC post

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri Public Service Commissioner A. Robert Pierce, the former commission chairman who vocally disputed contentions of Gov. Joseph Teasdale earlier this year, said he will resign from the commission next month.

In a two-paragraph letter to the governor, Pierce said "personal considerations suggest that I step down at this time." His resignation is effective June 13.

He had served on the commission for 3½ years and had refused along with three other commissioners in January to resign at Teasdale's request.

Teasdale had said in his campaign he would either fire or seek the resignations of all the commission members except James Mulvaney because he claimed those four men had not been acting in the public interest.

At the time Pierce and the others declined to resign, they indicated that decision was not intended to mean they planned to complete their full terms. They said then it depended on what the atmosphere would surround the commission's activities in the future.

Nuclear plant sit-in jails 800

SEABROOK, N.H. (AP) — At least 800 demonstrators, most of them in their 20s, were being held in jails and armories in this seacoast area today after they were arrested for refusing to end a peaceful sit-in at a nuclear power plant. Most of those who were taken into custody in arrests that began Sunday and stretched into early today at the site of the $2 billion Seabrook nuclear plant were booked for investigation of criminal trespass.

Sheriff's office busy over weekend

BLOOMFIELD — A raid, a break- in and a theft of garden equipment kept the Stoddard County Sheriff's Department busy over the weekend.

The Twin Lakes Fishing Club on Route AB north of Bloomfield was raided at 9:30 p.m. Saturday by representatives of the State Liquor Control Board, Missouri Highway Patrol and Stoddard County Sheriff's Department.

The club was operated by Donald Perry of Route Three, who reportedly had no liquor license.

Officers seized a quantity of beer and liquor as contraband and arrested Ricky S. Perry, 23, who was charged with selling alcoholic beverages without a license, after selling beer to a state liquor control agent.

Perry is free on bond.

No other arrests were made in the raid and the club was closed down.

Two rooms of furniture were stolen Friday from the Raymond Battles' home at Dudley.

The break-in was discovered Friday morning.

Entry was gained by breaking open a window and unlocking a door.

Two garden tillers and a lawn mower were stolen from the yard of Orville McCormick of Dexter Route Three on Saturday, the sheriff's department said.

Local traffic accident leaves 2 hurt

Two persons received minor injuries in a two- car accident at the intersection of North Main Street and Kennedy Drive Saturday morning, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Treated and released in the emergency room at Missouri Delta Community Hospital were Debra Watson, 20, of 811 Harvard Drive, who was treated for bruises to the forehead, and a passenger in the car she was driving, Robert Murrell, 12, of 615 W. North St., who was treated for a blow to the head.

Public safety officers said the accident occurred at 11:43 a.m. when the Watson car, northbound on North Main Street struck the side of a car driven by Linda Mae Miller, 39, of 323 Matthews Ave., as it made a left turn onto Main Street from Kennedy Drive.

There were no arrests, according to officers.

Celtics' dreams of repeat come to end

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The torch has been passed. The champions have been dethroned. Pro basketball's old guard has given way to the new.

The team of the past, the Boston Celtics, was eliminated from the National Basketball Association playoffs Sunday by the team of the future, the Philadelphia 76ers.

And it was done with two ingredients which served the Celtics so well during their 20-year, 13-championship reign — hustle and defense.

"They hustled and scrapped and worked hard," said Tom Heinsohn, coach of the defending champion Celtics, who were dethroned by Philadelphia 83-77 in the seventh-game showdown of their quarter-final series.

"They deserved to win," added Heinsohn, who observed in this series a clash of styles — Philadelphia's often-erratic, one-on-one game against Boston's old fashioned, team-oriented attack.

"We played an absolutely fantastic defensive game," exulted Sixers Coach Gene Shue. "We've been criticized for our lack of defense all year, but we showed we could play it today. I'd say we won this entire series on defense."

The Sixers advance to the Eastern Conference final, where they will meet another up-and-coming team, the Houston Rockets. The Rockets beat the Washington Bullets 108-103 Sunday to take their quarter-final series 4-2.

The Philadelphia-Houston series opens at Philadelphia Thursday night.

In Western Conference playoff action Sunday, the Golden State Warriors evened their series with Los Angeles at 3-3 by beating the Lakers 115-106. The seventh game will be played in Los Angeles Wednesday night and will be nationally televised (CBS, 11:30 p.m. EDT).

The Denver Nuggets, meanwhile, kept their hopes alive with a 114-105 overtime triumph over Portland. The Trail Blazers lead 3-2, with the sixth game to be played tonight in Portland.

Lloyd Free, Philadelphia's explosive reserve guard who likes the nickname "All-World," missed his first six shots from the field but came on in the second half to lead all scorers with 27 points.

It was the 13th time Boston has appeared in the seventh game of a playoff series — and only the second time it has been beaten.

Houston seemed to come up with a different hero each game in its series with Washington.

Sunday the big men were Mike Newlin, who scored 15 of his 21 points in the fourth quarter as Houston erased a 10-point third-quarter deficit, and Rudy Tomjanovich, who led the Rockets with 26 points, including four long jump shots in the final period.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had 43 points — his fourth game of the series with 40 or more — and 20 rebounds for the Lakers, but it was not enough to offset Warriors forwards Rick Barry and Jamaal Wilkes, who teamed for 47 points.

The Warriors ran off 15 in a row early and opened a 20-point lead in the first half. The Lakers cut it to four points early in the third period, but Barry and Wilkes scored four baskets apiece in the next six minutes to keep Golden State on top.

After Abdul-Jabbar picked up his fifth personal foul with 11:19 remaining in the game, the Warriors outscored the Lakers 9-2 to clinch it. Abdul-Jabbar scored just four points after that.

Each of the first six games in this series has been won by the home team, which should give the Lakers an edge in Game Seven. They've won their last 13 starts at the Forum in Los Angeles.

Denver blew a 12-point third-quarter lead and literally gave Portland a chance to win it by turning the ball over with seven seconds to go in regulation and the score tied. But Lionel Hollins missed a tough 18-footer at the buzzer to keep the Nuggets' playoff hopes alive, and the overtime period belonged to Denver.

Littler ends two-year drought

HOUSTON (AP) — Gene Littler leaned back with a contented sigh.

"It's great feeling," he said. "When you haven't won in two years, and things are going bad, it's almost like winning that first one all over again.

"At this stage, if you go two years without winning and you're not playing too good, you start to wondering if you're ever going to win again."

Littler, at 46, answered the questions that had been bothering him and reversed the youth movement that has dominated the pro golf tour this year with a relatively-easy, front-running, three-stroke victory in the Houston Open Sunday. He led by margins that ranged from four to seven strokes most of the gray, cloudy day.

The slightly-built Littler acquired the 29th victory of a career that stretches back to the early '50s with a conservative, final-round 74 and a 276 total, 12 under par on the wet and heavy Woodlands Country Club course.

It ended a two-year victory drought for the courageous veteran who, in the early 1970s, conquered cancer and returned to winning golf after rebuilding his picture swing despite an operation that damaged muscles on his left side.

"I love the guy," said little Chi Chi Rodriguez, who lost a fight for second place — the only race there was in the face of Littler's huge lead.

Celtics' dreams of repeat come to end

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The torch has been passed. The champions have been dethroned. Pro basketball's old guard has given way to the new.

The team of the past, the Boston Celtics, was eliminated from the National Basketball Association playoffs Sunday by the team of the future, the Philadelphia 76ers.

And it was done with two ingredients which served the Celtics so well during their 20-year, 13-championship reign — hustle and defense.

"They hustled and scrapped and worked hard," said Tom Heinsohn, coach of the defending champion Celtics, who were dethroned by Philadelphia 83-77 in the seventh-game showdown of their quarter-final series.

"They deserved to win," added Heinsohn, who observed in this series a clash of styles — Philadelphia's often-erratic, one-on-one game against Boston's old fashioned, team-oriented attack.

"We played an absolutely fantastic defensive game," exulted Sixers Coach Gene Shue. "We've been criticized for our lack of defense all year, but we showed we could play it today. I'd say we won this entire series on defense."

The Sixers advance to the Eastern Conference final, where they will meet another up-and-coming team, the Houston Rockets. The Rockets beat the Washington Bullets 108-103 Sunday to take their quarter-final series 4-2.

The Philadelphia-Houston series opens at Philadelphia Thursday night.

In Western Conference playoff action Sunday, the Golden State Warriors evened their series with Los Angeles at 3-3 by beating the Lakers 115-106. The seventh game will be played in Los Angeles Wednesday night and will be nationally televised (CBS, 11:30 p.m. EDT).

The Denver Nuggets, meanwhile, kept their hopes alive with a 114-105 overtime triumph over Portland. The Trail Blazers lead 3-2, with the sixth game to be played tonight in Portland.

Lloyd Free, Philadelphia's explosive reserve guard who likes the nickname "All-World," missed his first six shots from the field but came on in the second half to lead all scorers with 27 points.

It was the 13th time Boston has appeared in the seventh game of a playoff series — and only the second time it has been beaten.

Houston seemed to come up with a different hero each game in its series with Washington.

Sunday the big men were Mike Newlin, who scored 15 of his 21 points in the fourth quarter as Houston erased a 10-point third-quarter deficit, and Rudy Tomjanovich, who led the Rockets with 26 points, including four long jump shots in the final period.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had 43 points — his fourth game of the series with 40 or more — and 20 rebounds for the Lakers, but it was not enough to offset Warriors forwards Rick Barry and Jamaal Wilkes, who teamed for 47 points.

The Warriors ran off 15 in a row early and opened a 20-point lead in the first half. The Lakers cut it to four points early in the third period, but Barry and Wilkes scored four baskets apiece in the next six minutes to keep Golden State on top.

After Abdul-Jabbar picked up his fifth personal foul with 11:19 remaining in the game, the Warriors outscored the Lakers 9-2 to clinch it. Abdul-Jabbar scored just four points after that.

Each of the first six games in this series has been won by the home team, which should give the Lakers an edge in Game Seven. They've won their last 13 starts at the Forum in Los Angeles.

Denver blew a 12-point third-quarter lead and literally gave Portland a chance to win it by turning the ball over with seven seconds to go in regulation and the score tied. But Lionel Hollins missed a tough 18-footer at the buzzer to keep the Nuggets' playoff hopes alive, and the overtime period belonged to Denver.

Littler ends two-year drought

HOUSTON (AP) — Gene Littler leaned back with a contented sigh.

"It's great feeling," he said. "When you haven't won in two years, and things are going bad, it's almost like winning that first one all over again.

"At this stage, if you go two years without winning and you're not playing too good, you start to wondering if you're ever going to win again."

Littler, at 46, answered the questions that had been bothering him and reversed the youth movement that has dominated the pro golf tour this year with a relatively-easy, front-running, three-stroke victory in the Houston Open Sunday. He led by margins that ranged from four to seven strokes most of the gray, cloudy day.

The slightly-built Littler acquired the 29th victory of a career that stretches back to the early '50s with a conservative, final-round 74 and a 276 total, 12 under par on the wet and heavy Woodlands Country Club course.

It ended a two-year victory drought for the courageous veteran who, in the early 1970s, conquered cancer and returned to winning golf after rebuilding his picture swing despite an operation that damaged muscles on his left side.

"I love the guy," said little Chi Chi Rodriguez, who lost a fight for second place — the only race there was in the face of Littler's huge lead.

Rasmussen blanks Braves

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Eric Rasmussen boasts the low earned run average on the staff of the St. Louis Cardinals and is not hard-pressed to explain why.

"I think a lot that has to do with it is that they're telling me I'm going to get the ball and pitch," Rasmussen said Sunday.

"I've had streaks," he added following an 8-0 triumph over the Atlanta Braves achieved on a route-going performance. "My first year I pitched real well, but this year I think I'm more consistent."

Rasmussen, who is in his third major league season and who a year ago was in the Cards' bullpen, composed a five-hit gem against the Braves that was tarnished by only two walks.

Meanwhile the hard-throwing right-hander struck out six, including Tom Paciorek three times, and trimmed his ERA to 2.85 to go with a 2-3 record.

"My fast ball, when it's alive, moves all over the place," said Rasmussen following a yield of three Atlanta singles and two doubles. "The last time Paciorek fanned it was on a pitch that just took off."

Rasmussen, supported by only six St. Louis runs in four previous starts, gained an early advantage against the Braves via Ted Simmons' two-run triple in the opening inning.

Lou Brock singled home a run in the second, Keith Hernandez did likewise in the third and the Cards exploded for three more on four hits in the sixth following a single run in the fifth.

Royals beat Toronto 8-2

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Whitey Herzog has seen all he wants of the expansion Toronto Blue Jays.

"They're a fine team with some good players and they're going to beat some people this year," the Kansas City manager said Sunday.

"They're scrappy. You let up on 'em, you're likely to get beat."

Herzog's Royals whipped the Blue Jays Sunday, 8-2, to take two of their three weekend games in the first meeting of the clubs.

Herzog said the Blue Jays "are definitely better" than the Seattle Mariners, the American League's other new entry this season.

"Seattle doesn't have a pitcher like (Jerry) Garvin," he said, "and their infield isn't as good, either. For an expansion club, they really are exceptional."

Garvin, Toronto's 21-year-old righthander, boosted his record to 4-0 Saturday night when the Mariners scored two runs in the ninth for a 2-1 decision.

"That's what I mean," Herzog said. "Anybody who lays back and waits for Toronto to lose is in for a big surprise. They're tough."

Larry Gura checked the Blue Jays on seven hits through seven innings Sunday as a last-minute replacement for Andy Hassler, who is on the disabled list for two weeks with a knee bruise.

A left-hander who started two games for the Royals in the American League playoffs against New York last year, Gura had been targeted strictly for bullpen duty this season.

"I wasn't sure what to do with Andy out," Herzog said. "Gura had been pitching so well out of the bullpen, it was a tough decision to make. But he was super today. He can really pitch."

Gura says he doesn't care whether he starts or relieves, "as long as Whitey lets me know ahead of time."

"Whitey's been truthful with me," said the mild-mannered Gura. "and that's the way I think it should be. In spring training, he told me I would work out of the bullpen. Now, with Andy out, he told me I would be starting. You have to be prepared mentally and physically to pitch, and it's impossible to do that when you never know from one day to the next what the manager has in mind.

Gura's victory Sunday moved his record to 2-0, which no doubt is exactly what Herzog has in mind.

Eagles down Scott Central

EAST PRAIRIE — East Prairie put together four hits and two errors to come up with six runs in the second inning and coasted to a 10-3 victory over Scott Central in a Scott-Mississippi Conference battle Friday afternoon.

Salomon trying to sell Blues

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues owner Sidney Salomon Jr., says he and his son, Sidney Salomon III, are making "every effort possible" to sell the National Hockey League team.

"I wish we were close to making a deal," Salomon said Sunday. "We're doing everything we can to get close to several groups. We want someone who first will keep the team in St. Louis and also run the type of organization of which we will be proud."

Salomon, in addition to heavy financial burdens which hang over the Blues' heads, cited poor health as his reason for wanting to sell.

"I've had two heart attacks, my son's health is not good and the advice we've had from the doctors is that we've got to cut back," he said.

"If it were five or six years ago — or even two or three — you'd have to fight us every step of the way to get us out. But things have changed."

The biggest problem of the Blues has been labeled operational costs of the 18,000 seat-Arena.

Todd wins Super C race at Speedway

Todd edged out Wayne Burch of Matthews in the feature. Todd also won the second heat in the Super C class, with James Satterfield, also of Sikeston, winning the first heat.

Jim Riley won the first heat in the B competition and came back to win the feature race in the same class, beating out Rod Holshouser. Gary Easton was the winner in the second heat of Class B.

Opportunity Knocks Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss ... and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done". But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss ... but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days at their risk, and see for yourself!

Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. If you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. # Rasmussen blanks Braves

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Eric Rasmussen boasts the low earned run average on the staff of the St. Louis Cardinals and is not hard-pressed to explain why.

"I think a lot that has to do with it is that they're telling me I'm going to get the ball and pitch," Rasmussen said Sunday.

"I've had streaks," he added following an 8-0 triumph over the Atlanta Braves achieved on a route-going performance. "My first year I pitched real well, but this year I think I'm more consistent."

Rasmussen, who is in his third major league season and who a year ago was in the Cards' bullpen, composed a five-hit gem against the Braves that was tarnished by only two walks.

Meanwhile the hard-throwing right-hander struck out six, including Tom Paciorek three times, and trimmed his ERA to 2.85 to go with a 2-3 record.

"My fast ball, when it's alive, moves all over the place," said Rasmussen following a yield of three Atlanta singles and two doubles. "The last time Paciorek fanned it was on a pitch that just took off."

Rasmussen, supported by only six St. Louis runs in four previous starts, gained an early advantage against the Braves via Ted Simmons' two-run triple in the opening inning.

Lou Brock singled home a run in the second, Keith Hernandez did likewise in the third and the Cards exploded for three more on four hits in the sixth following a single run in the fifth.

Royals beat Toronto 8-2

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Whitey Herzog has seen all he wants of the expansion Toronto Blue Jays.

"They're a fine team with some good players and they're going to beat some people this year," the Kansas City manager said Sunday.

"They're scrappy. You let up on 'em, you're likely to get beat."

Herzog's Royals whipped the Blue Jays Sunday, 8-2, to take two of their three weekend games in the first meeting of the clubs.

Herzog said the Blue Jays "are definitely better" than the Seattle Mariners, the American League's other new entry this season.

"Seattle doesn't have a pitcher like (Jerry) Garvin," he said, "and their infield isn't as good, either. For an expansion club, they really are exceptional."

Garvin, Toronto's 21-year-old righthander, boosted his record to 4-0 Saturday night when the Mariners scored two runs in the ninth for a 2-1 decision.

"That's what I mean," Herzog said. "Anybody who lays back and waits for Toronto to lose is in for a big surprise. They're tough."

Larry Gura checked the Blue Jays on seven hits through seven innings Sunday as a last-minute replacement for Andy Hassler, who is on the disabled list for two weeks with a knee bruise.

A left-hander who started two games for the Royals in the American League playoffs against New York last year, Gura had been targeted strictly for bullpen duty this season.

"I wasn't sure what to do with Andy out," Herzog said. "Gura had been pitching so well out of the bullpen, it was a tough decision to make. But he was super today. He can really pitch."

Gura says he doesn't care whether he starts or relieves, "as long as Whitey lets me know ahead of time."

"Whitey's been truthful with me," said the mild-mannered Gura. "and that's the way I think it should be. In spring training, he told me I would work out of the bullpen. Now, with Andy out, he told me I would be starting. You have to be prepared mentally and physically to pitch, and it's impossible to do that when you never know from one day to the next what the manager has in mind.

Gura's victory Sunday moved his record to 2-0, which no doubt is exactly what Herzog has in mind.

Eagles down Scott Central

EAST PRAIRIE — East Prairie put together four hits and two errors to come up with six runs in the second inning and coasted to a 10-3 victory over Scott Central in a Scott-Mississippi Conference battle Friday afternoon.

Salomon trying to sell Blues

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues owner Sidney Salomon Jr., says he and his son, Sidney Salomon III, are making "every effort possible" to sell the National Hockey League team.

"I wish we were close to making a deal," Salomon said Sunday. "We're doing everything we can to get close to several groups. We want someone who first will keep the team in St. Louis and also run the type of organization of which we will be proud."

Salomon, in addition to heavy financial burdens which hang over the Blues' heads, cited poor health as his reason for wanting to sell.

"I've had two heart attacks, my son's health is not good and the advice we've had from the doctors is that we've got to cut back," he said.

"If it were five or six years ago — or even two or three — you'd have to fight us every step of the way to get us out. But things have changed."

The biggest problem of the Blues has been labeled operational costs of the 18,000 seat-Arena.

Todd wins Super C race at Speedway

Todd edged out Wayne Burch of Matthews in the feature. Todd also won the second heat in the Super C class, with James Satterfield, also of Sikeston, winning the first heat.

Lilbourn club discusses Indian mounds

LILBOURN — The Indian mounds near Lilbourn was the topic of the program at the April meeting of the Lilbourn Civic Improvement Club. Miss Harryette Campbell, of Sikeston, presented and narrated slides showing the excavation work done by the University of Missouri.

She gave an interesting account of the Indians that inhabited the area for about five hundred years.

Miss Campbell also had on display several artifacts taken from various mounds. The most significant was an exact reproduction of a mace taken from one of the burial sites. This artifact is very unique and is a symbol of one who had attained a high status and position of authority among the tribes.

The club voted to sponsor a drive to clean up the two existing temple mounds and develop them as sites of historical interest. They are already recognized on the National Historical Register.

Several members indicated that they would attend the spring meeting of the Ninth District Missouri Federated Women's Clubs to be held in Poplar Bluff April 23.

The club has purchased a plaque bearing the names of all past presidents. At the May meeting, the plaque will be officially placed in the city hall and all those who have served as president will be reocgnized. Nancy Campbell will be in charge of the dedication program.

Teresa Treadwell, who made the Sophomore Pilgrimage, will also report on her trip. She was accompanied by President Margaret Corse.

Twenty members and three guests were present. Nancy Campbell hosted the meeting. She was assisted by Ellenora and Sandy Giddens.

Lawn preparation guide for summer

Now is the time to prepare your lawn for the summer season. What you do will go a long way to controlling many of the weeds that could invade your grass.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture passes along these tips:

If you haven't put lime on your yard recently, the soil may be to acid for the growth of a really successful lawn. You can put ground limestone on at any convenient time without danger of burning the grass, (dolomitic limestone containing both calcium and magnesium is preferred). An application of 50 to 80 pounds of ground limestone per 1,000 square feet every 5 to 6 years is usually sufficient to keep the soil from getting acid. Be sure to avoid overliming.

Grass needs food too--and the plant food elements it needs in large amounts are nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash. A complete inorganic fertilizer such as 10-6-4, 10-10-10, 20-10-5, 23-7-7, 16-4-8, 20-10-10, or one similar, contains all three nutrients.

And be careful about mowing. Improper mowing can really hurt the grass. Cutting the grass too short weakens it, causes shallow rooting, lowers resistance to drought, and increases susceptibility to disease.

It also leads to thinning of the grass and invasion of weeds.

Mow your lawn frequently enough so that you don't remove more than half of the total blade at any one mowing. It's less harmful to the grass to mow it frequently, than to shock it by cutting off long growth less frequently.

And after you've mowed, remove the clippings, so you don't smother the grass. Excess clippings can also encourage the spread of disease organisms.

For more information on lawns, get a copy of Better Lawns. Just send 50 cents to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 73E, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

New Madrid youth is chosen for scouting event

Mary Jane Higgerson

OKLAHOMA CITY — Mary Jane Higgerson of New Madrid, Mo., has been chosen as one of 106 participants in "Red Lands Reflections," a Wider Opportunity event sponsored by Red Lands Council of Girl Scouts, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

Miss Higgerson is the daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Wesley Higgerson and attends New Madrid High School.

"Red Lands Reflections" opens on August 1st, when the participants arrive in Oklahoma City. After a three-day visit with Oklahomans in their homes, the girls will move to Camp Red Rock, Binger, Oklahoma, where they will begin an exciting two-week journey through the unique Indian and Western heritages that are Oklahoma.

Among field trips scheduled for the girls are tours of the American Indian Exposition at Anadarko and the famed Cherokee Indian Village at Tahlequah. On August 19 the girls return to Oklahoma City for two final days with their host families.

"Red Lands Reflections" is one of 18 Wider Opportunity events with national participation sponsor by local Girl Scout Councils during 1977. Nearly two years in the planning, the event will offer a detailed and accurate picture of Oklahoma and its history -- a history told in the words of famed Western figures and the Indian leaders of the past and present.

Household Hints

Wonderful cheese sandwiches: brush the outsides of the sandwiches with melted butter and brown in a heavy skillet. Serve with mango chutney or add the chutney when you add the cheese.

Baked cookies, stored in the freezer, may be kept as long as a year.

Cooked carrots benefit from orange flavor. When you "butter" them, stir in a little grated orange rind.

Pureed ripe banana makes a delightful addition to chocolate milk; just blend the fruit with the beverage.

A bottle of orange-flavor liqueur in the house? Add a little to a custard sauce and serve over poached or baked apples.

How to preserve prom flowers

By Jill Corti

For many of you juniors it was the first prom, for the seniors it would be the last big dance of your high school years. Many of you girls may want to preserve a special part of that evening by drying the flowers you received. With the help of one of my co-workers, Betty Schaefer, 814 Harvard, we will tell you the process needed.

Place the flowers, whether a coursage or nosegay into a paperbag, be sure that the flowers are upside down in the sack and then place them in a dark closet.

After the flowers are in the closet for a period you may remove them and place the flowers in a glass case of some type or whatever you wish.

Grandma's Corner

By Jill Corti

Many of us have leftovers and stack them in the ice box until doomsday. Here is a list of different prepared foods that will freeze with no problems.

Chicken a la King, baked beans, stews, spaghetti dishes, meats, meat loaves, roast fowl-casserole dishes, all cooked turkey, meat pies, French fried potatoes, soups and fruits and vegetable juices.

Ann Landers

Astrologer must have exact data

Dear Ann Landers: I have heard many times that a Scorpio and a Sagittarius should never marry. I never believed it but I do now. I've waited 50 years to tell the world. It's too late for me but maybe it will prevent others from ruining their lives.

Please comment, as I need to know why people who are born under conflicting signs have so much trouble. You DO believe in astrology, don't you, Ann? -- Sad And Sorry

Dear S. and S.: No, I do not, but I know many highly intelligent people who do. Some of my friends wouldn't dare make a significant (or insignificant) decision before consulting their horoscope. While I am not knocking the True Believers, neither am I ready to join them.

The reason I am skeptical is this: In order for an astrologer to draw up a truly accurate horoscope, he must know the individual's exact moment of birth. He then charts the position of the sun, the moon and the eight planets as they appear above his birthplace. The placement and angular relationships of these bodies make up the natal chart.

How many people know the exact moment when they were born? See what I mean?

Dear Ann Landers: I haven't spoken to my borther's wife in seven years. It would take the whole newspaper to tell you the entire story, so I'll just say she did me unbelievable dirt and I have never been able to forgive her.

My daughter is getting married in a few months and I want the wedding to be a happy occasion. I know my mother will be sad if my brother and his wife are not present. (He refuses to come without her even though he knows she was in the wrong and has told me so.)

My other two sisters say she (the one who did me the dirt) should apologize and then I should invite her. But the girl is as stubborn as a Missouri mule. I'm sure she'd die first. What should I do? -- Open For Suggestions

Dear Open: Don't let the Missouri mule spoil a beautiful day. Go to her and say, "Let's forget the past. I want you to attend my daughter's wedding and make it a happy day for everyone -- especially Mother."

Dear Ann Landers: I have a cousin who is exactly my size. We are both married to nice guys but Mabel's husband has never made much money, which is kind of too bad because she loves good clothes.

I frequently let her borrow dresses, coats, and hats, which she always returns promptly and in good condition. But twice last week when I was standing with my cousin, someone said to me, "I see YOU are wearing Mabel's great-looking dress tonight." Both times Mabel heard the remark and didn't say a word. Am I being petty to expect her to set the record straight? -- A Little Annoyed

Dear A.L.A.: This is a problem? I am printing your letter to give my readers an idea of what some people's lives are like. If this is the most annoying thing in your life, you're plenty lucky, lady.

CONFIDENTIAL to Made My Own Bed and Crying a River: Turn off the waterworks, Toots, you're wasting the natural resources. Sometimes a hard bed can be better for the spine than a soft one. Chalf this one up as a learning experience and you'll come out of it a much wiser and stronger person.

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY — We found the suggestion for using that product one sprays on stains before washing was great for cleaning shower doors — until we discovered my husband was allergic to it. Now I use a liquid detergent and a stainless steel pad and find that, too, works just great. When all is clean I apply a wheel cleaner wax that can be bought in the auto department of hardware stores. I use this on all bathroom fixtures and glass shower doors and they stay clean longer. Build-up is a thing of the past with me. (Polly's note: Be careful of any wax on the bottom of a tub or shower floor as that invites accidents.) — NORMA.

Lilbourn club discusses Indian mounds

LILBOURN — The Indian mounds near Lilbourn was the topic of the program at the April meeting of the Lilbourn Civic Improvement Club. Miss Harryette Campbell, of Sikeston, presented and narrated slides showing the excavation work done by the University of Missouri.

She gave an interesting account of the Indians that inhabited the area for about five hundred years.

Miss Campbell also had on display several artifacts taken from various mounds. The most significant was an exact reproduction of a mace taken from one of the burial sites. This artifact is very unique and is a symbol of one who had attained a high status and position of authority among the tribes.

The club voted to sponsor a drive to clean up the two existing temple mounds and develop them as sites of historical interest. They are already recognized on the National Historical Register.

Several members indicated that they would attend the spring meeting of the Ninth District Missouri Federated Women's Clubs to be held in Poplar Bluff April 23.

The club has purchased a plaque bearing the names of all past presidents. At the May meeting, the plaque will be officially placed in the city hall and all those who have served as president will be reocgnized. Nancy Campbell will be in charge of the dedication program.

Teresa Treadwell, who made the Sophomore Pilgrimage, will also report on her trip. She was accompanied by President Margaret Corse.

Twenty members and three guests were present. Nancy Campbell hosted the meeting. She was assisted by Ellenora and Sandy Giddens.

Lawn preparation guide for summer

Now is the time to prepare your lawn for the summer season. What you do will go a long way to controlling many of the weeds that could invade your grass.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture passes along these tips:

If you haven't put lime on your yard recently, the soil may be to acid for the growth of a really successful lawn. You can put ground limestone on at any convenient time without danger of burning the grass, (dolomitic limestone containing both calcium and magnesium is preferred). An application of 50 to 80 pounds of ground limestone per 1,000 square feet every 5 to 6 years is usually sufficient to keep the soil from getting acid. Be sure to avoid overliming.

Grass needs food too--and the plant food elements it needs in large amounts are nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash. A complete inorganic fertilizer such as 10-6-4, 10-10-10, 20-10-5, 23-7-7, 16-4-8, 20-10-10, or one similar, contains all three nutrients.

And be careful about mowing. Improper mowing can really hurt the grass. Cutting the grass too short weakens it, causes shallow rooting, lowers resistance to drought, and increases susceptibility to disease.

It also leads to thinning of the grass and invasion of weeds.

Mow your lawn frequently enough so that you don't remove more than half of the total blade at any one mowing. It's less harmful to the grass to mow it frequently, than to shock it by cutting off long growth less frequently.

And after you've mowed, remove the clippings, so you don't smother the grass. Excess clippings can also encourage the spread of disease organisms.

For more information on lawns, get a copy of Better Lawns. Just send 50 cents to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 73E, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, May 2, the 122nd day of 1977. There are 243 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, the Soviets announced the fall of Berlin in World War II.

On this date:

In 1670, the Hudson's Bay Co. was chartered by England.

In 1863, Confederate Gen. Thomas (Stonewall) Jackson was mistaken for a Union scout and fatally wounded by his own soldiers during the Civil War Battle of Chancellorsville, Va.

In 1890, the Oklahoma Territory was organized.

In 1933, Adolf Hitler abolished labor unions in Germany.

In 1960, Caryl Chessman was executed in San Quentin Prison in California after eight stays of execution.

In 1966, there was rioting in Israel during a visit by former West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Ten years ago: The United States announced plans to withdraw up to 38,000 troops and nearly 100 planes from the NATO defense force in West Germany.

Five years ago: At least five miners were known dead and 77 reported missing in an explosion and fire at the Sunshine silver mine in northern Idaho.

One year ago: A leftist militia group in Lebanon captured a key port area in fighting in the capital of Beirut.

Today's birthdays: King Hussein of Jordan is 42 years old. Bing Crosby is 73.

Thought for today: Nothing is really work unless you rather would be doing something else James Barrie, Scottish writer 1860-1937.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, May 2, the 122nd day of 1977. There are 243 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, the Soviets announced the fall of Berlin in World War II.

On this date:

In 1670, the Hudson's Bay Co. was chartered by England.

In 1863, Confederate Gen. Thomas (Stonewall) Jackson was mistaken for a Union scout and fatally wounded by his own soldiers during the Civil War Battle of Chancellorsville, Va.

In 1890, the Oklahoma Territory was organized.

In 1933, Adolf Hitler abolished labor unions in Germany.

In 1960, Caryl Chessman was executed in San Quentin Prison in California after eight stays of execution.

In 1966, there was rioting in Israel during a visit by former West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Ten years ago: The United States announced plans to withdraw up to 38,000 troops and nearly 100 planes from the NATO defense force in West Germany.

Five years ago: At least five miners were known dead and 77 reported missing in an explosion and fire at the Sunshine silver mine in northern Idaho.

One year ago: A leftist militia group in Lebanon captured a key port area in fighting in the capital of Beirut.

Today's birthdays: King Hussein of Jordan is 42 years old. Bing Crosby is 73.

Thought for today: Nothing is really work unless you rather would be doing something else James Barrie, Scottish writer 1860-1937.

The case of the luckless driver

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Barney was feeling depressed and took several drinks to forget, but the only thing he forgot was to stop drinking. The result? On his way home, he was involved in an accident, was convicted of manslaughter and was given a two-year suspended sentence by Judge Hoople -- with instructions that he was to report any subsequent arrests to his probation officer without delay.

Several months later, Barney was back in the soup. He was involved in a minor seven-car accident, and along with all the other drivers, he was given a ticket for driving too fast under the prevailing circumstances. When Judge Hoople heard that Barney didn't report the incident to his probation officer promptly, he ordered that Barney be hauled off to the slammer to serve his two-year suspended sentence for not reporting his "arrest" immediately.

"You've got it all wrong," protested Barney. "I wasn't arrested. I was only given a traffic ticket.

"That's what you say," was the answer, "but I'm the judge and I say that getting a ticket is an arrest. It certainly isn't an invitation to the Policeman's Ball!"

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that receiving a traffic citation is not an arrest. An arrest, noted the judge, occurs when a person's liberty is restrained or when he is taken into custody, which did not happen to Barney as a result of the seven-car accident.

(Based upon a 1973 United States Supreme Court Decision)

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you find that Barney had been arrested so as to justify his being klinked?

BOOK REVIEW

VOYAGE. By Sterling Hayden. Putnam. 700 Pages. $12.95.

This is one of those novels usually described as "lusty, robust and larger-than-life," and involving characters "back when men were men!"

Well, that's the kind of novel it is, or it's at least a novel about the sailing men of that era.

"Voyage" is an enormous work — 700 pages — which centers primarily on the trip of a large, newly built sailing ship from Maine to California around the tip of Africa.

The plot provides Sterling Hayden with a vehicle for lamenting the passing of sail and the emergence of steam, reviewing the encapsulated life of the old-time sailor who spent months at sea, and scrutinizing the era's emerging awareness of the injustice of the sailor's lot.

The interlacing of some subplots is rough and on occasion a couple of subplots remain permanently unconnected. Not that this is wrong, but it is different and can cause a problem for a reader settled into the complacency of one-plus-one-equals-two story lines.

Elegant; Decidedly Different

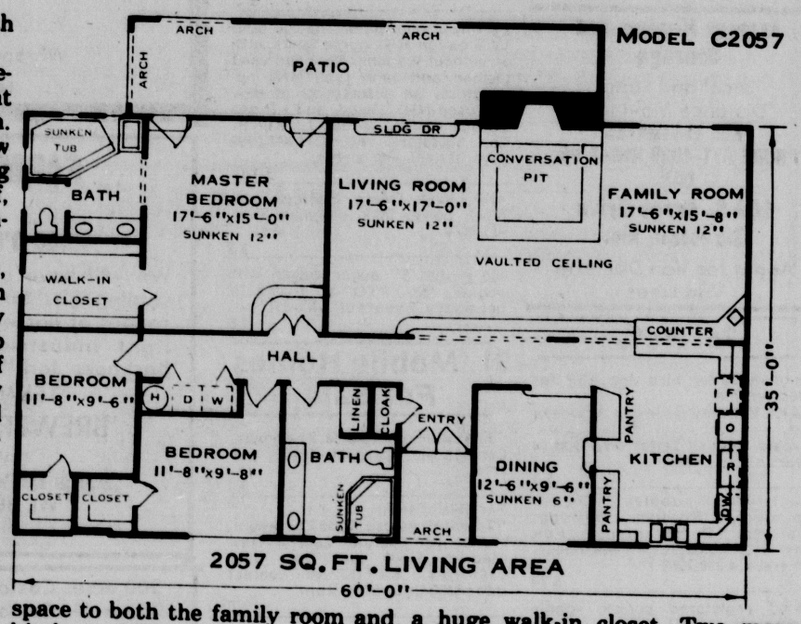
HOME DESIGN .
By Larry Farnsworth



Homeowners who demand elegance and something different would do well to choose this plan. Its imposing exterior, with the row of high arched windows rising above the lower span of tiled roof, truthfully proclaim that here, indeed, is a house of distinction.

The lower level arched windows, both small and large and the twin light-filtering panels, actually they lend both privacy and distinction to a most glamorous main bath—all of these, together with the imposingly paneled and recessed front door add still more excitement to the exterior.

Inside, a look across the central hallway proves that the interior of this home is as excitingly elegant as its exterior. Directly ahead is a huge, sunken living room—family room area with each unit sharing a central conversation pit and the massive fireplace it sets off.

Look upward, toward the vaulted ceiling and you see that those second story arched windows which add so much to the exterior serve to provide impressive skylight type lighting for this area.

And, of course, there are other delightful features, too—a walled and arched patio just beyond the living room's sliding glass doors; a handy counter which adds dining space to both the family room and kitchen which share it.

There's a separate, formal sunken dining room too, at the front of the house beside the big kitchen with its twin pantries and many cupboards.

Down the hallway, the main bath boasts a delightful corner sunken tub and a similar even larger model graces the master bedroom bath. And, note too, that the master bedroom is also sunken. Additionally it has its own patio entrances and a huge walk-in closet. Two more bedrooms, and a convenient, hall-side washer-dryer alcove open from the main hallway.

Truly elegant and designed with a difference, this home promises exciting living for all who select it.

Medicaid errors near $5 million in Missouri

WASHINGTON (AP) — A list of the states and territories whose Medicaid errors were the subject of a nationwide survey by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare included these:

The table lists the total dollars of erroneous claims paid during the six-month period of the survey and the per cent of error found.

Illinois, $7,311,000; 4.3 per cent.

Iowa, $1,577,000; 5.1 per cent.

Kansas, $3,044,000; 7.4 per cent.

Missouri, $4,795,000; 7.9 per cent.

Nebraska, $667,000; 2.9 per cent.

Oklahoma, $426,000; .7 per cent.

National Total: $245,427,000, 9 per cent.

NOT EXACTLY death defying, but still quite a feat for two feathered residents of Tampa, Fla., Busch Gardens.

Missouri opposition to 'instant registration' is overwhelming

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. AP — President Carter's election-day voter registration plan may have split Congress down party lines, but in Democratic Missouri, opposition to the Democratic President is nearly unanimous.

In a survey of the state's 116 county election officials, Secretary of State James Kirkpatrick says opposition to the President's proposal is "overwhelming."

Kirkpatrick conducted his survey last week, and hopes to use the results as ammunition when he testifies on the plan Tuesday before a Congressional committee in Washington.

Citing the possibility for voter fraud and his belief that Missouri will lose money implementing the federal program, Kirkpatrick said he will oppose election-day registration. He called it a "disaster for democracy or, at best, a bureaucratic bamboozle."

Only one of the five election boards in Missouri has not formally opposed the President's proposal, and only four of the more than 100 county clerks responding to the survey said they agreed with the program. County clerks are the chief election officials outside the metropolitan areas.

Most of them said they expected long lines election day and general confusion if the program is enacted.

With election-day registration, voters could register at the polling places merely by showing some identification and signing an affidavit. Carter has proposed the program to increase voter participation.

But checking on possible double-voting and other voter fraud would be time-consuming, an aide to Kirkpatrick said. It could also delay the results in close elections because of more challenges to the tally, he added.

Another potential problem, the aide said, is that persons would wait until election day rather than go to the trouble of registering early. Persons could be discouraged by long lines of people waiting to register and vote on election day, he said.

Missourians now must register about 30 days before elections to give election officials time to verify the voting rolls. Kirkpatrick also plans to attack the plan as one that will cost Missouri money, despite reimbursement provisions. The President's proposal calls for financial assistance to cover "start-up" costs for the program.

Twenty cents per voter would be alloted for those costs, and another 20 cents would be alloted if the state choses to extend election day registration to state and local elections.

If registration increases 10 per cent under the proposal, which Kirkpatrick says is a conservative estimate, Missouri will spend $750,000 on "start-up" costs-but only $370,000 would be covered by the federal government.

The state's General Assembly would have to authorize extension of the special registration to state and local elections before Missouri would be eligible for additional money.

Hypertension institute set May 5 in Cape

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The Southeast Region of the Missouri Heart Association, the Missouri Division of Health, the St. Francis Medical Center, Southeast Missouri Hospital and Southeast Missouri State University are co-sponsoring a one-day nursing institute on hypertension on May 5.

This program will be held at Ramada Inn in Cape Girardeau between 8:30 and 4:45. The program is being conducted as a part of National Hypertension Month. Support from the Missouri Heart Association and Division of Health makes it possible for this program to be conducted with a $6 registraion fee, which includes the cost of the noon luncheon.

Speakers will include Doctors Tom Meriwether of Memphis Tenn and C. R. Talbert Jr. of Cape Girardeau.

The program will cover: Etiology of hypertension, diet in hypertension, medical management of hypertension and compliance and patient education.

Those wishing to registor for the program may do so by writing the Missouri Heart Association, P.O. Box 21, Cape Girardeau, or calling 314 335-3240.

Jerry L. Stewart

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Airman Jerry L. Stewart, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ulace Stewart of Portageville, Route Two, has been selected for technical training at Corry Field, Fla., in the Air Force communications systems operator field.

The airman recently completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex., and studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

Airman Stewart is a 1976 graduate of North Pemiscot High School, Wardell, Mo.

Vance Pawielski

MINOT, N.D.—Sgt. Vance S. Pawielski, son of Mrs. Betty Stanley of Parma, Mo., has re-enlisted in the U.S. Air Force after being selected for career status.

Pawielski, an administrative specialist at Minot Air Force Station, N.D., was approved for re-enlistment by a board which considered character and job performance. He is amember of the Aerospace Defense Command.

David Hicks

CAPE GIRARDEAU—David M. Hicks, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Hicks of 816 Agnes, Sikeston, enlisted in the United States Air Force, according to Staff Sergeant Jim Riggs, the local recruiter.

Shortly after the enlistment ceremony, Airman Hicks flew to Lackland Air Force Base near San Antonio, Tex., for six weeks of basic training. The 1972 graduate of Sikeston High School has accepted a job as an inventory management specialist.

After basic training, he will attend training in inventory management. He will study item and monetary accounting and stock control; financial planning, funds control, determinations for allowances, and dispose of surplus property.

A THOUGHT TO REMEMBER

By RAYMOND CREWS

"Mommy, fix it, please." . . . "Mother, help me, please." . . . As children we knew we could count on her, and we did. She understood us. She was our insulation against childish chills of fear and anxieties. As time goes on, many mothers hear different words; strange words of impatience, irritation, exasperation - yes, even rebellion. They hear, "Oh, mother, you just don't understand." In later years, if we will only admit it, we know many mothers did understand things that were beyond our understanding in former years. But, there are some things a mother should not be expected to understand at any time.

How can she understand why days and weeks go by with no word from those she likes to hear from? How can she understand why she is expected to be insensitive to indifference or neglect? How can she understand why expected phone calls don't come through? How can she understand why (unwritten) letters don't arrive?

Yet, on Mother's Day she understands. Frankly, wouldn't it be more pleasant for her if demands for her understanding would be less on all the other days? ...

A THOUGHT TO REMEMBER

By RAYMOND CREWS

"Mommy, fix it, please." . . . "Mother, help me, please." . . . As children we knew we could count on her, and we did. She understood us. She was our insulation against childish chills of fear and anxieties. As time goes on, many mothers hear different words; strange words of impatience, irritation, exasperation - yes, even rebellion. They hear, "Oh, mother, you just don't understand." In later years, if we will only admit it, we know many mothers did understand things that were beyond our understanding in former years. But, there are some things a mother should not be expected to understand at any time.

How can she understand why days and weeks go by with no word from those she likes to hear from? How can she understand why she is expected to be insensitive to indifference or neglect? How can she understand why expected phone calls don't come through? How can she understand why (unwritten) letters don't arrive?

Yet, on Mother's Day she understands. Frankly, wouldn't it be more pleasant for her if demands for her understanding would be less on all the other days? ...
